

2 | POVERTY & SOCIAL INEQUALITY

Mentions of inequality as a worry have not changed this month (30%). Levels of concern have remained broadly steady over recent months, and we have consistently recorded around three in ten being worried since May 2023.

Indonesia is still the most concerned with nearly half (48%) mentioning inequality – a slight uptick from last month. Despite worry being higher than all other countries, it's not the top concern for Indonesians.

Concern in Great Britain has experienced a modest rise this month – moving out of the bottom ten by increasing four points to three in ten (29%).
